FARM AND LABOR HORIZON GLOWING WITH PROMISE

Leaders in Two Great Divisions, Generally, See Continued and Increasing Prosperity

NEW YORK, Jan. 2. (P)—American farmers and laborers look to 1927 with confidence, spokesmen of those great producing groups declared today to the Associated Press.

A week ago leaders in the financial and industrial fields, through the same medium, expressed "conservative optimism" as the outlook presented by the new year. Today are given the views of agriculture and allied key industries, and of the worker in other fields, completing a preview of 1927, seasonally, for the entire country.

Without exception, the most recent of forecasts voiced the confident expectation of their respective groups. The outlook for 1927 is generally favorable, and the year will bring increased production of the American farmer and the American worker.

Nicaragua Seeks Intervention

Revolution Called Conflict Between Government and Mexico

Calles Charged With Starting Strife and Protection Asked in Crisis

MANAGUA (Nicaragua) Jan. 2. (P)—Adolfo Diaz, president of the conservative government in power here, issued a long statement today to the American and foreign public, in which he reviewed the course of events in his country and reiterated his charges that Mexico has intervened in its affairs.

He declared that another filibuster expedition, "instigated by the United States," had landed on the Pacific Coast of Nicaragua, which his government hopes to repel successfully and its affairs.

The future of Nicaragua and eventually of all Central America is at stake in the present conflict, Diaz declared. He said that the United States government and the Calles government of Mexico are both responsible for the intervention.

NEW QUAKES START FIRE

Two Buildings in Mexicali Burn

Tremors are Slight, However, and Valley Cities Begin Repairing Damage

MEXICALI, Jan. 2. (P)—Recurrent tremors again shook the twin cities of Calexico and Mexicali today and destroyed two buildings.

A number of jobs were felt from midnight throughout this morning, several of them severe, sending loose bricks flying into the streets and widening already existing cracks in buildings.

The shocks, however, did not add materially to previous estimates of damage to which place the property loss in the two border towns at approximately $1,500,000.

The first shock started in Mexicali early this morning a few minutes after a severe shock, burned two large two-story buildings in Calexico.

The burned buildings housed a general store and liquor store and the famous Paria Cafe in the Chinese section of Mexicali. The Calexico fire department crossed the line to aid the Mexicali department, but was unable to save the doomed structure, both departments centering their efforts on preventing the flames from spreading.

Buildings crowded to Mexicali today. Gov. Rodriguez of Lower California rescinded the ban on operation of bars and gambling halls and the closing of schools and churches. The ban on other places, some as far distant as Los Angeles.

Reporters here today said that Black Butte, a volcano four miles south of the border, was active, though the volcano had been dormant since 1914, when earthquakes struck this and other Imperial Valley cities.

E. D. Agnew, police commissioner and building contractor, today estimated the property loss in Calexico and Mexicali at $1,500,000, exclusive of fire insurance. The fire destroyed five buildings, including the Paria Cafe, valued at $250,000. These, with minor losses unreported in outside papers, are expected to bring the total to near the $1,000,000 mark.

An official estimate of the damage caused by the tremor will not be made until Tuesday, when the state housing commissioner will arrive here. He will decide which buildings are to be condemned.

Agnew is of the opinion that no structures will need to be raised except the school buildings, which must be torn down and in others sections of walls.

Each of today's shocks was preceded by a subterranean rumbling, which ended in a noise like a thunder clap and followed a few seconds later.

An optimistic note in today's report of the situation, which revealed the undiminished spirit of the Calexico residents, was when surveyors began their work in the shadows of crumpled walls, laying out the site for a $400,000 hotel, theater and Elks' Club to be built by the Calexico Hotel Company.

LEGISLATURE BEGINS BUSY SESSION AT NOON TODAY

Young's Inaugural Scheduled for Tomorrow, With Speakership Issue Still in Doubt

BY C. A. JONES "Times" Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 2.—The Forty-seventh session of the California Legislature convenes here tomorrow noon, with a busy three months ahead of it, but with a program rather well mapped out. Much rests on the outcome of the fight for the speakership, however, which was still undecided tonight.

Lieut.-Gov. Young will call the Senate to order and Chief Clerk Arthur Ohnibus of the Assembly will bang the gavel in the Lower House in the absence of Speaker Merriam.

The first duty of the two houses will be to canvass the vote for Governor and declare the election of Gov.-elect Young. The Assembly will then proceed with the battle for the speakership, while Senator Broad, president pro tem of the Senate, will assume the chair in that house.

The inauguration is scheduled for 3 p.m. on Tuesday, and a large crowd is expected in the Assembly chamber, where the event takes place. The many people plan to attend that it is understood speakers will be admitted only by card.

Gov.-elect Young and Lieut.-Gov. Broad will be sworn into office by Chief Justice Wente of the Supreme Court. Gov. Richardson, the retiring executive, will file his last message with the Legislature at this time. It is expected to review the accomplishments of his administration during the past two years. The message of Gov.-elect Young will then be submitted. This message, which will be lengthy and which has occupied his time for the past several weeks, will contain his recommendations for legislation for the coming session.

Mr. Young being unfamiliar with the details of the state, he will not start to complete it in time for the convening of the Legislature. It will be submitted about the middle of the month, it is expected.

The new administration will receive a surplus of more than $200,000 from Gov. Richardson. According to the report of the state auditor, Mr. Young will receive this sum for at least a part of his administration. He plans to create a commission to "review" the state's financial condition.

The report of this body probably will not be received until the middle of the month, which is expected to occur in a few days. ## VOTERS RESENT "HURRAHS"

Federation Reports Failure to Bring Out Heavy Ballot Despite Vigorous Campaign

NEW YORK, Jan. 2. (P)—Apathetic voters cannot be "hurrahed" to the polls, according to an "unpleasant conclusion" reached by the National Civic Federation, which made diligent nonpartisan efforts in the recent election to get out a heavy vote. In the announcement, made today, failure to equal the vote in the off year election of 1922 is reported in twenty-five states, while in forty-one states the vote fell far behind the 1924 Presidential year figures.

This poor showing is despite the fact that the Civic Federation had the co-operation of the American Legion, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, National League of Women Voters, American Federation of Labor, United States Chamber of Commerce, Daughters of the American Revolution, National Education Association, Women's Department of the National Civic Federation, National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, International Woman's Club, National Grange, National Fraternal Congress and United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The National Association of Manufacturers conducted a vigorous national get-out-the-vote campaign of the campaign efforts in the recent election. The campaign was conducted by more than 1000 cities and towns. Some of the cities that had the best record in getting out the vote were: Kansas; Frank L. Folk, former acting secretary of state, and former Gov. Frank O. Lowery of Illinois. In report, outlining the details of the campaign.

Results were reported by John Hays Hammond, chairman of the department on political education of the Civic Federation. Ellen Ross is honorary chairman of the department. The vice-chairmen include: Gov. Frank O. Lowery of Illinois; Gov. Frank L. Folk, former acting secretary of state, and former Gov. Frank O. Lowery of Illinois. In report, outlining the details of the campaign.

Edison Company Protests
Steam Plant

Says Construction Violates
City's Agreement

Funds for Project Subject of Controversy

Charge the Municipal Bureau of Power and Light in denying the public are contained in the injunction suit filed against the Edison Company, which goes to trial next Thursday before Superior Judge Shaw.

The Edison company is asking the court for a permanent injunction to prohibit the bureau from constructing a $3,000,000 plant at Los Angeles Harbor for generating electricity by steam. The bureau declares that the steam plant is only to be used for "stand-by" purposes in emergencies when the hydroelectric supply from the city and Edison plants is curtailed.

The Edison company sets forth that the construction of the municipal steam plant is in direct violation of the city's agreement with the company, and says it will file at the court hearing testimony to show that the bureau has broken faith with the people of Los Angeles and with the Chamber of Commerce, and by mingling bond money and power revenues and changing its budget has violated the City Charter in order to show a bogus state of prosperity for itself.

The power bureau recently borrowed $500,000 from the general tax funds of the city, and with that it will be able to go into court next Thursday and declare that it has the money on hand to proceed with the construction of the steam plant.

AFFIDAVIT BY MYERS
City Controller Myers has made an affidavit which will be presented in court in which he states that "the proceeds of all power bonds of the Department of Water and Power of the city of Los Angeles are transferred into a 'power-revenue fund' as needed, and that all disbursements of the Bureau of Power and Light for operating expenses, new construction, reconstruction, and all other capital purposes are made out of said 'power-revenue fund.'"

On a last affidavit and the requirements of the charter, the Edison Company attorneys in the complaint which has been filed charge that in proceeding to build the steam plant, the power bureau has "acted arbitrarily, capriciously and without authority of law, and the expenditure of all or any of the public funds of the city, therefore, will be illegal and constitute a waste of the public funds and property of the city."

Radio Man Believed to Have Doubled Back West

A final attempt to trace the whereabouts of Aimee Semple McPherson between May 18, last, the date of her disappearance from Venice, and June 23, when she reappeared out of the Mexican desert, is being made by the District Attorney's investigators, it was learned last night.

Ben Cohn, chief investigator for Dist. Atty. Keyes, left the city two days ago and his destination was closely guarded.

The investigation has proceeded to a point twenty-four hours before the reappearance of Mrs. McPherson, across the international line from Douglas, Ariz., it was learned, and centered on a hotel registration in El Paso, Tex., said to have been made by a woman answering the evangelist's general description.

Simultaneously, the investigators began checking the movements of Kenneth G. Orniston, former radio operator at Angeles Temple, out of Chicago on July 23, on the theory that he had crossed the border across the continent to Seattle and thence to Oakland, obtaining the now famous blue Chrysler coupe in that city and changing garages to abandon the machine.

At EL PASO HOTEL
The "mystery woman" was said by the authorities to have appeared at a hotel in the Texas city on or about June 21, last, and remained there for a day and a night, departing on a westbound train which went through Douglas approximately seven hours before the evangelist was found in Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mex., said to have been made by a woman answering the evangelist's general description.

After the "mystery woman" was alone at the time of her appearance at the El Paso hotel was a matter the investigators were also attempting to solve last night it was learned.

At the same time the movements of the evangelist were being traced by the authorities, the search for the "mystery woman" was being continued.

DISTURBING

Ship Leaving Los Angeles
in November Feared Lost
During Pacific Storm

Alarm was expressed in shipping circles yesterday concerning the British tanker "Toro," seventeen days overdue on a voyage from Los Angeles to Tsurumi, Japan, with 90,000 barrels of oil for the Japanese navy.

The "Toro" left here November 24, last, and should have reached her destination not later than December 17. She was last reported from 1500 miles out, December 1.

Harbor men are unable to account for the lack of word from the "Toro," as she is equipped with radio and it is customary to report positions daily. The "Toro" was last reported from the regular track of oriental travel. No other vessel has seen any trace of her, it is said. Several severe storms have been reported.

The "Toro" is in command of Capt. George Walker and carries a crew of thirty-four. She is of 4200 tons and is 441 feet long. She was built at Glasgow in 1922.

The vessel is owned by the Sherdan Steamship Company of London and is under contract to the Chilean Exploration Company. She has been plying between here and Chile in the oil trade, making her present voyage to Japan under a special contract. She is reported to carry 11,750,000 insurance.

The Lancer

Harry Carr

THE case of Frankie Bailey, who is undergoing a terrible operation at one of the local hospitals, is particularly pitiful.

At one time she was said to be the highest-paid woman in vaudeville and was renowned for the most beautiful pair of legs ever exhibited in silk tights. For two or three years she has been around the Hollywood studios eagerly picking up crumbs in the way of small parts.

If there is anything more utterly pitiful than the wreck of a Venus I can't think what it could be.

"NEVER HAVE TO WORK"
People raise their eyebrows and ask what she did with all her big salary that she should now be reduced.

As a matter of fact, this is merely a myth about stars who have saved their money and now "will have to work again."

It takes a pile of money—put out at interest—to yield enough to come to represent a living salary. There are a few who have been shrewd enough to multiply their money by good investments, not so many. As a general thing, prize fighters, actors, and other easy-money folk are broke in their old days.

One fact not generally recognized is that the expense of any one in the public eye is simply terrific. Unless you are a writer, you can't be cheap and be famous.

KIPKING—BIG AND SMALL
Kipling's sixty-first birthday, let's look him over!

He is a strange combination, apparently, of a great, excited soul, and a little shrewd one. He is a small fox could stick it through the hoop of an old-fashioned watch.

Nothing in modern literature is bigger in sweep and thought than "The Reckoning." And nothing ever put in print was more contemplative or cruel, with the cruelty of a complete lack of sentiment, than something Kipling wrote about the German officer burned to death on the steps of a French cathedral.

If the capacity for hatred is small, then some of Kipling's writings bespeak a smallness that makes a split second loom up like the Woolworth Building.

FATHER KILLS HIMSELF AND BABIES WITH GAS

Wife Finds Bodies of Three in Bedroom Closet on Return
From Holiday Visit

Arthur Chilstrom, Sr., 32 years of age, painting contractor and an aviator during the World War, committed suicide, at the same time taking the lives of his two children, Arthur Chilstrom, Jr., 4, and Marion, 18 months, shortly before midnight Saturday according to the report of police authorities. The discovery of the three bodies was made early yesterday when Chilstrom's wife, Margaret, returned from Altadena where she was visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tohlman, 6004 West Forty-seventh street.

When Mrs. Chilstrom entered her home at 1815 West Fifty-eighth street, she detected a strong odor of gas and upon opening the closet of the rear bedroom found the lifeless bodies of her husband and children. They worked over the three bodies with inhalators for more than an hour without success. Removal of the three to the County Mortuary followed.

There are the eighth and ninth children here recently to be killed by parents who then destroyed their own lives. This is the first time a father has perpetrated the crime.

DOOR PARTLY OPEN
According to Detective Lieutenants Clark, Lyons and Kirk, they found that Chilstrom had removed the cap of a hitherto unused store connection in the rear bedroom, then attached an automobile inner tube, which had previously cut in two, and employed it as a hose to carry the gas from the pipe to the closet, where his body and that of his children were found. Mrs. Chilstrom said the door of the closet was partly open when she arrived home.

She is at a loss to explain her husband's act. They had no financial or domestic difficulties, she affirms. Chilstrom left no note of explanation.

Investigating officers reported that on Thanksgiving Day, last, Chilstrom was found unconscious, seated in his automobile, the motor running and rapidly filling the garage with poisonous fumes. They were viewed in the light of an accident by the seventy-seventh division police who restored him to life by prompt work with the inhalator. Police investigation is said to have revealed also that Chilstrom suffered an injury in a parachute drop prior to entrance in the aviation service, subsequent to his discharge from the army he is reported to have suffered an attack of sleeping sickness, but from which, to all appearances, he recovered.

USED WIFE TO LLAIVE
New Year's Night, Chilstrom urged his wife to accompany her sister and brother-in-law, that she might see Christmas trees in Altadena, according to Mrs. Chilstrom he said he would wash the dishes and put the children to bed. It was found that he had washed the dishes as promised and partially prepared the younger child for bed.

Neighbors are unanimous in their declaration that Mr. and Mrs. Chilstrom were apparently very happy and contented couple; Chilstrom's attitude toward his children was, they maintain, unusually thoughtful and kindly.

Investigating authorities expressed the belief that the injury suffered in an unsuccessful parachute drop approximately ten years ago may have been responsible for his apparent loss of mental equilibrium. They pronounced the triple death a case of suicide on the part of Chilstrom and homicide of his two children.

HENRY LYON FUNERAL SERVICES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Henry Lyon, 75 years of age, of 1110 Coronado street, San Fernando, will be conducted tomorrow. Mr. Lyon was a son of Cyrus Lyon, a San Fernando Valley pioneer. He leaves his widow, four sons and six daughters, all of San Fernando. He died Sunday morning.

Witnesses said Fitzman failed to get his brakes to function as he neared the bottom of the grade. Another car bottomed in front of him as he swung his car quickly down a side street and overturned. Patrolmen Ryan and Little helped rescue the injured.

Fitzman and Calafarin were taken to the Receiving Hospital, where an examination showed both to be suffering from internal injuries. Miss Colton was taken home.

FOR THE REMOTE FUTURE

Relating to the remote future the idea of Philippine independence, Col. Carmi A. Thompson, the President's special commissioner to the islands, says in a long report that the indefinite postponement of that plan is advisable, but that there should be a gradual extension of internal autonomy. Col. Thompson made an extended study of affairs in the Philippines. His views are in most respects in accord with those expressed on several occasions by President Coolidge, who said in his last general message that "the economic development of the islands is very important" and that "they ought not to be turned back to the people until they are politically fitted for self-government and economically independent."

Col. Thompson says that the Philippines could not possibly meet the expenses of self-government. The revenue derived from taxation in 1925 was $44,333,000. This sum would not pay for an efficient army, navy, diplomatic corps, consular service and other establishments, entirely aside from the maintenance of the existing departments and of carrying on essential internal activities. While the islands would be at the mercy of aggressive foreign nations, they also would suffer from lack of funds to carry on public education, sanitation, irrigation and road-building. Much of what the United States had accomplished there in these respects would be lost.

A further illustration of what would happen in the event of our granting independence to these people is seen in the fact that practically all the bonded indebtedness of the Philippines is held by citizens of the United States, who bought the securities relying upon the continuance of American sovereignty. The credit of an independent government would be small, and it would be impossible to build it up until a long term of years had elapsed. The present bonds would depreciate greatly and they might become worthless. If the payment of them were made conditional upon independence, as it naturally would be, the Philippine government would have no means with which to redeem them.

Civil strife would be likely to follow independence. It is now kept down by the force of a power far superior to what the Philippines would be able to bring to bear. It is not the easiest thing in the world for our own government to suppress the Moros and Mohammedans. The Moros in particular are very unruly. Besides this, in the opinion of Col. Thompson, "the gulf is so wide between the upper and lower classes in the Philippines that no genuinely popular government is possible until the position of the masses has been raised by education, economic improvement, and until a common second language of the masses has been established. This common language should be English."

So it is seen that, aside from economic considerations, real independence could not long be maintained, as the government might easily become an oligarchy of the Philippines might be split up into warring factions, each led by a chief of one of the various language groups. Then, too, the abandonment of the islands at this time might complicate international relations in the Orient. As for trade relations, they would be seriously affected. For one thing, there would be no free trade in sugar, and Cuban competition would kill the industry in the Philippines.

A relaxation of army rule is recommended by the commissioner, who says that an independent department for the administration of Philippine affairs should be created. Most of these recommendations, if not all of them, are in full accord with the best views of close students of the Philippine problem.

FOR NAVAL PARITY
President Coolidge's approval of the House bill offered by Chairman Butler of the House Naval Affairs Committee is a distinct advance toward American naval treaty parity which this country never has fully enjoyed, and from which it seemed to be drifting, to the dismay of those who had on protective interests at heart. We scrapped $300,000,000 worth of warships of various patterns, some of them quite new, as our part of the observance of the treaty. Others were all but finished and still others well under way. If completed, some of these ships would have been the cream of the Navy, so naval experts say, and being new would have required little repair and expense of upkeep. At present we have on our hands as the largest part of our treaty-limited battleship force those older ships which cannot be fully conditioned or modernized without abnormal expenditure.

We need light cruisers, and the Butler bill provides for ten ships of this class. Representative Butler says that we really need more to establish cruiser parity with Great Britain and Japan, as we are below the 5-5-3 standard in this respect as well as in others. It is said that Mr. Butler has joined the ranks of the alarmists. One would judge this to be the case, for he says in a highly pessimistic article in the Army and Navy Journal that America has been fooled by the other nations in the matter of parity—that while they willingly signed the disarmament agreement they have taken no pains to observe it. He owns that he himself was deceived. "Having succeeded in inducing the nations to destroy some of their great ships," he says, "I supposed that a friendly relation had been made and that America sank some $60,000,000 tons of good steel those nations would appreciate the generosity expressed in our willingness to make such an enormous sacrifice." But he says he learned later that other nations had built more ships than they scrapped and that the spirit of the 5-5-3 treaty has not been observed. He promises that he will never do anything of the kind again.

President Coolidge does not seem to share Mr. Butler's misgivings as to our lack of naval parity with other nations, and in this he is supported by experts, among them Capt. Dudley W. Knox, chief of the historical section of the Navy Department, who does not place so much reliance upon warships as upon naval aviation. Capt. Knox looks forward with much confidence to our aircraft development. He says that no better aeronautical experts exist anywhere than among the 4000 officers and men composing the naval aviation organization. Development has gone ahead, on the lines laid down by the general board of the Navy three years ago, and the Navy has converted itself into a combination of air and sea power, with the planes and dirigibles planned or under way, will soon be invincible.

Somebody Loves a Fat Man

of overgating the case as to our lack of naval preparedness, it is more than likely that the activities of Britain and Japan in the building of new cruisers have caused him to look at the matter of our present naval needs with greater anxiety than is warranted by the facts, particularly those relating to our resources. Without descending to ingratiation, it may be said that we have more ready money with which to build ships or anything else than any three other nations in the world. From a condition of nonpreparedness our Navy expanded itself in the World War and is now a powerful force. It is useless to say that the Nicaraguan case is a wholly different one from ours. All the insurgents can see in our attitude is that it represents "an abuse of force against a small and weak but dignified country," which asks of us the same recognition that has been given it by Mexico.

POLICING NICARAGUA
Always uneasy in mind because of excessive solicitude over something or other, Senator Borah is unduly worrying himself over what will be the result of our intervention in the Nicaraguan case. Just because Mexican filibusters have been supplying arms to the rebels headed by Juan Sacasa would seem to be no good reason why the Mexican government should take umbrage when we make a firm attempt to protect the lives and property of Americans in Nicaragua by land and sea, and saying "hands off" to the insurgents. If there is even the shadow of a reason for this, it is clear only to the Borah type of mind, and the question is whether it is very clear, at that. President Coolidge is giving on Nicaragua and Mexico to understand that we are merely policing the country for the protection of Americans and their property.

Our government, as a rule, has been slow to interfere in petty squabbles between different factions in any of the lower republics, and in the Nicaraguan affair it would seem, from a superficial view of it, that it is none of our business whether Sacasa or Diaz rules the roost so long as our citizens are unharmed. But, aside from our right to police the Pacific Coast, the United States has a right to be concerned in the Nicaraguan case. It is the interest of the United States that happens to be sentimental considerations which, perhaps, Senator Borah has lost sight of in his undue perturbation over the situation or, what is probably nearer to the truth, his overweening desire to strike an attitude in the spotlight.

From the beginning of the present regime in Nicaragua and even when Gen. Chamorro first assumed the Presidency of that republic, the United States warmly supported the existing government in the hope that such support would put an end to insurrection, as Nicaragua was too uncomfortable close to the Panama Canal for us to tolerate anything like war within its borders. But Chamorro turned out badly. He proved himself unworthy of our confidence by assuming the role of dictator and manipulator of elections. Of course, like all supreme egoists in the political line, he eventually overreached himself and could no longer control the situation. The election of Diaz to the Presidency followed, and our government transferred its support, after a fashion, to that executive, who now holds the political reins in Nicaragua, despite all the intrigues and open hostility of Sacasa, the rebel leader, to unseat him. In a way, therefore, we are committed to the further recognition of the present Nicaraguan government. We had maintained a small army of marines on the coast of the country up to August, 1925, when they were withdrawn on the assurance of Nicaragua that they were no longer necessary and that the government was competent to maintain order. But early last summer trouble broke out anew, the so-called Liberal party beginning hostilities again on a small scale and threatening the capture of Managua, the capital.

So we again took up the white man's burden, and after months of watchful waiting, during which we kept gunboats off the coast, we have at last been forced to land troops to police the region in which Americans are most interested and to warn off the rebels. It is not a pleasant duty, particularly as we are being reminded by the insurgent leaders that we were once revolutionists ourselves and would have stoutly objected to any interference with our program of independence. It is useless to say that the Nicaraguan case is a wholly different one from ours. All the insurgents can see in our attitude is that it represents "an abuse of force against a small and weak but dignified country," which asks of us the same recognition that has been given it by Mexico.

A NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITY
"Earnest Willie" Uphaw, the spectacular Congressman from the Fifth District of Georgia, probably never had a prouder moment than when he introduced one Leander C. Gentile of that State to the House of Representatives as the father of two bright children. The House, it is reported, "applauded vociferously," and the hearts of both Mr. Gentile and Mr. Uphaw swelled with elation, as well they might, for the Congressman, who never had a chance to greet any other parent quite so prolific, were not only unassuming in their appearance, but made numerous flattering comments upon the fact of his having fathered so large a family. Leander also was loved over to the White House by "Earnest Willie" and he had a pleasant reception there. In fact, all Washington laid itself out to do him honor.

Now nobody could reasonably object to the recognition of paternal distinction to a man of note, but what about the matter of it? Will anybody contend that to be the mother of twenty-eight children would not be something much more worth while bragging about or that Congress should not applaud her far more vociferously than the mere father? But in the whole story of Leander's triumphant progress about Washington, where the welkin rang with such glee as nearly to drown the merry shouts of the holiday-makers, there is not the slightest reference to any honor done to a Mrs. Gentile.

Here was a neglected opportunity. Congress should have done something in recognition of the woman or women who had borne all these children to Leander. There was its sense of gallantry and its sense of justice. It should have promptly granted to the mother of Leander's numerous progeny? Out upon such inconsiderate legislators! How dare they go home and face their feminine constituents?

NOT PLAUSIBLE
The Senate was mentioned as being anxious to escape debate over the seating of Senator Frank Smith of Illinois, but folks who have watched the Senate for many moons will grin over any suggestion of a Senator shirking opportunity to exercise his voice.

MUST BE A LEAD
We are told that there are 800,000 in the United States who are secretly using cosmetics. If they are so blamed secret about it, how did the statistician count them?

PEN POINTS

Republicans aren't ungrateful. They let patriots steal a lot.

The saddest words of tongue or pen are these: "That tree's fat again."

Never offer advice to a woman until you have found out just what she intends to do.

When a man is too lazy to work he tries to persuade his wife to start a boarding house.

Of course, infants think. Else how does one know when to awake and how for a drink just when the bedroom floor feels most like ice?

One good result of the war is that a trip to Europe no longer causes so much nose elevation.

The definition of the word "good" varies, but always the definition is done by the good.

Funny race. To one man a handicap is a millstone about his neck; to another, just a wheel rock.

Americanism: Trying very hard to get rich; cursing the man who has got there.

Hard times are those in which the people pay off the bonds they voted to issue in good times.

The pursuit of happiness isn't really a race. You just hold your nose to a grindstone and let nature take its course.

As to baseball salaries, who deserves the money if not the man who provides the entertainment?

The silk people never lose. As skirts get shorter stockings get longer.

A nation of dollar-chasers? Well, with pay-roll bandits forever getting the things, somebody has to chase them.

A genius is a man who keeps on doing good work, even after he has reputation enough to get by with sorry work.

If you really years for an emotional experience, try getting fired from a job you urgently need.

The difference between discussion and argument is that discussion doesn't invite insulting reference to the other fellow's ancestors.

Correct this sentence: "Since I said he was a man, I was wrong."

A dimple is a simple thing—but it has proved an open grave to many a man.

RASPUTIN'S DAUGHTERS

BY MURZA BARONOVA

They came to Southern Russia—to the Crimea—these daughters of a peasant who for a time was greater in Russia than the Czar, to escape the rigor of the northern winters. They were flowers that had been transplanted from the steppes to a lush garden. Their ways were the ways of the wild life, and luxury abounded and fretted them.

Rasputin himself became known to the western world only through the medium of war propaganda. He was ambitious, crafty and cruel, but not in the manner in which he was painted to England and America. And there are many in Russia who still hold that he was at heart a patriot, that he sought only the security of the empire and the good of the Russian people.

Rasputin was by birth a peasant. He educated himself—something not easy in Russia in any age. In the western propaganda he was called "The Monk Rasputin." But he never wore clerical garb of any kind and was not a churchgoer. He never acknowledged any religious affiliation, but was suspected of being a secret member of a fanatical sect not recognized by the Greek Church.

RASPUTIN THE MYSTIC
Rasputin pretended to exercise occult powers, and it was as a mystic that he obtained his influence over the Czarina. She was a queen—and a mother. Her son was the victim of a disease that the medical science of Europe could not heal. It developed almost in his babyhood. A scratch on his hand or cheek would not heal; and it was the same with any abrasion of the stomach or intestines.

Children so affected seldom attain maturity. The Czarina, despairing of the life of her son, Rasputin learned of this condition and capitalized it. Even the court physicians admitted that he had a strange power over the child. Rasputin would come when he was at his worst, would lay his hands on him, mutter incantations, make weird signs and he would grow better.

He told the mother that so long as he remained in Petrograd the boy would live; but that if he went away to the country or to foreign parts the next attack would be fatal. The Czarina believed him; and she would do his bidding to preserve the life of her boy.

Rasputin was of the party that opposed an alliance with England and France. He held that Russia should cast its lot with Germany, that the two empires, united, could bid defiance to the rest of Europe; divided, they would destroy each other and the western powers would benefit.

We of Southern Russia did not believe that Rasputin sold out our country to Germany. He did not seem bent merely on accumulating wealth. But the German secret service was crafty enough to find venal persons who, for pay, secured Rasputin's confidence, wormed secrets from him and gave them to the enemy. In this way he was a traitor, although, perhaps, not a traitor at heart.

The Czar was never under the influence; but he would not send him to his banishment, because the Czarina became hysterical, saying it meant the death of the son, whenever the subject was mentioned. Such was the effect of faith when he was stabbed to death by one of the nobles.

THE VICTIMS
With their father's death the daughters of Rasputin were left with a brand like that of Cain on their foreheads. They were outcasts. Nowhere in Russia was there a shelter for their heads. Living, Rasputin had his defenders. Dead, his memory was an object of horror and aversion. And this aversion extended to his daughters, whose only guilt was to be the father's blood.

Petrograd was a city of the living dead. The capital and holy city of the Ukraine. The passengers had alighted and stood about the station. It was full war time and there was a search for spies and refugees. I sat in the waiting room when two women of the secret service came to examine us. We removed our veils and outer wraps. I noticed two women who appeared to be in the first twenties, because they were visibly ill at ease. They were about the middle height, with dark hair and high oval cheeks that suggested Tartar blood.

Their papers were apparently regular, but as they were repeating their effects, I was struck by a peculiar squint in the eyes of the younger. Where had I seen that before? Another scene came vividly before me: a waiting place in the Crimea and at a table two elegant ladies. About the eyes of one who was looking intently out into the night was that indefinable but unforgettable squint. And those two were the daughters of Rasputin.

The train carried them away to the East—to the long trail to Siberia.

KISMET!
Five years later I came from Honolulu to San Francisco, myself a refugee. One night I was at a function given by the Russian colony. Two of my countrywomen came with young Americans for escorts. There were others, of course; but for me there were only those two.

She was dancing when my attention was attracted to her because she brought to mind some indefinable one from the homeland. Later there were general introductions. I met her as the countess. . . . When she turned her eyes away there was a contraction of the muscles which awakened slumbering memories, the indescribable squint of the daughter of Rasputin.

THE MARK OF CAIN
By what sequence of adventures she and her sister made their way from Kiev to San Francisco! And how that birthmark, like a veritable stamp of Cain, followed to betray them. One can change names, dress, nationality; but there are things one cannot convey.

Hooker In Command.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

THE APPOINTMENT OF GEN. JOSEPH HOOKER TO COMMAND THE FEDERAL ARMY OF THE POTOMAC RAISED THE SPIRITS OF THE UNION TROOPS AND BY APRIL, 1862, THEY WERE READY AND EAGER TO MARCH AGAINST THEIR OPPONENTS. HOOKER NOW HAD 130,000 WELL-EQUIPPED MEN, WHILE LEE ACROSS THE RAPPAHANNOCK IN FREDERICKSBURG HAD ONLY 60,000.

THE UNION COMMANDER PLANNED TO TRANSFER HIS FORCES TO THE SOUTH BANK OF THE RIVER WHERE THEY COULD MANOEUVRE WITHOUT CONFRONTING INTRENCHED POSITIONS. ON APRIL 13TH HE SENT GEN. STONEMAN WITH 10,000 CAVALRYMEN TO CROSS THE RIVER SOME DISTANCE UPSTREAM AND, SWINGING AROUND IN LEE'S REAR, TO TRY TO CUT THE CONFEDERATE LINE OF COMMUNICATION WITH RICHMOND.

HIS MOVEMENT WAS THWARTED BY HEAVY RAINS WHICH CAUSED THE RIVER TO RISE AND MADE THE ROADS IMPASSABLE. APRIL 27, HOOKER SENT THREE CORPS 25 MILES UP THE RIVER TO KELLY'S FORD, WHERE THEY CROSSED AND MOVED DOWN TO CHANCELLORSVILLE, NINE MILES FROM FREDERICKSBURG. ANOTHER CORPS JOINED THEM, SO THAT ON THE 30TH HOOKER HAD 40,000 MEN WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE OF LEE'S LEFT FLANK.

MEANWHILE BEDOWNS WITH THE FEDERAL 6TH CORPS (24,000 MEN), SUPPORTED BY THE 1ST AND 3RD (REYNOLDS AND BICKLES) CROSSED THE RAPPAHANNOCK BELOW FREDERICKSBURG TO THREATEN LEE'S RIGHT WING. BICKLES AND REYNOLDS WERE SUBSEQUENTLY ORDERED TO JOIN HOOKER AT CHANCELLORSVILLE, WHILE GIBSON'S DIVISION WAS LEFT IN PLAIN VIEW AT FALMOUTH TO MISLEAD THE CONFEDERATES.

Splendid Artists Perform at "Times" Station

BY DR. RALPH L. POWERS
Broadcast of the recent month has brought to the vast, invisible audience a tremendous revival of song cycles. In Chicago for instance, they have been having programs of Italian and other folk songs from the warm countries of the Mediterranean. These songs of different nations, which have adopted them through long usage and preservation through common possession, bring out the sense of the national traits of other countries.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for salom.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 30 years and colonel of the army, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown stool," headache, torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, easy relief from Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 10c, 50c, $1.00.

Mothers, Do This

When the children cough, rub Mucilage on their chests and chest. No milder law soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of Mucilage at hand to give prompt relief.

As fast and, Mucilage is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Rub Mucilage on throat, bronchitis, tracheitis, croup, cold, hoarseness, sore throat, cough, asthma, whooping cough, influenza, pneumonia, and all other ailments of the chest (a very general prescription).

To Mothers: Mucilage is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for "Children's Mucilage" at drug stores.

HIDDEN FORTUNE HUNTED
Search for $150,000 in Cash Begun in Los Angeles
With Arrest of Suspect as Master Forger

A search for $150,000 in cash, believed hidden in a jump sum, was started in Los Angeles yesterday by Burns detectives and police officers, following the arrest in San Diego Saturday of C. P. Dryden, alias John C. Callahan, declared to have been one of the most successful forgers in the country.

Since Dryden's apprehension, it was revealed here by J. W. Buchanan, director of the local office of the Burns agency, that his man has been seeking Dryden for weeks and that information gathered by Burns investigators led to the arrest in San Diego.

According to Buchanan, the arrested forger is said to have killed New York banks out of approximately $200,000, and information given them that he had hidden the remainder of the sum.

Dryden, it was learned from the Burns manager, apparently had been making his headquarters in and around Los Angeles. The detective also programs and hours devoted to each country.

In New York next Thursday night they are going to stress the songs of American boyhood at one of the stations. These popular airs will bring back memories of the old red schoolhouse or academy, the old camp and the swimmer's hole. The continuity program will contain orchestra numbers also with a pleasing melody, "The Whistler and his Dog," since no boy's program could possibly be complete without good old Fido or Rover.

Songs are the most spontaneous of musical forms and hence are found among all peoples. The art-song is so-called because it is deliberately composed, not as spontaneous as the folk song, but it brings us to the works of famous American composers. Unusually, attention is being given to the broadcast of well-known American.

Entire programs composed by Frederick MacKay, by Charles Wakefield Cadman, and by numerous distinguished composers, have been the radio studio of Los Angeles.

Tomorrow night, one New York station will give a Percy Grainger song, with the composer himself at the piano, and, although the musician was born in Australia, he is considered more often as a product of America, since eight years ago he became a citizen.

So the songs of our own country have come into prominence through the medium of the radio. In the modern treatment of the song there has been a rather evident tendency to elevate the accompaniment on the piano as a prominent feature into full parity of interest with the vocal melody and thus to make the whole more or less an ensemble form.

It is often said that as to both vocal and piano, the modern song is a rather different thing from the old song, described by qualifying terms as romantic, sentimental, national, satirical, martial and so on. The modern song is a rather different thing from the old song, described by qualifying terms as romantic, sentimental, national, satirical, martial and so on.

The song cycle, a set of several songs based on a single theme, is a modern form of song. It is a modern form of song, based on a single theme, is a modern form of song.

Songs of yesterday are popular everywhere today and the radio has largely been responsible for this. "The Middle of the Road," "Little Annie Rooney," "Blue Bird" and others are popular with those whose memories recall the days of 1900.

Going a little further back, the days of the early 20th century are recalled, and catching up with history, we often hear the tunes of 1917 in song programs of the 20th century.

Going more deeply into the song history, we find the early 19th century, when the song was a popular form of expression, and the song was a popular form of expression.

Retired Pastor Speaks of Early Days Here

Building Marks Merger of Broadway Flock

Memories of days when Los Angeles was little more than a village were recalled by Rev. John C. May, retired octogenarian pastor, officiating at the corner-stone laying of the new Arlington-avenue Christian Church, 1100 Broadway and Arlington avenue, yesterday afternoon.

The venerable minister pointed out that the building of the new edifice marks the pasting of the old Broadway Christian Church which was founded more than a half-century ago by B. F. Coulter, pioneer dry-goods merchant. Plans for a merger of the old Broadway and Pine boulevard churches were completed some time ago and the new structure will stand as a Collier memorial. The cost, when completed, will be between $250,000 and $300,000, according to

Rev. Mr. May, who was an intimate friend and co-worker of Mr. Coulter for many years. Associated with him in the building of the Broadway church, described its growth from a little struggling affair to its greatest achievement. Before we will be listening to hours of sacred songs, to songs by old masters of the old world, and some of the local composers.

The radio-program compiler of 1927 must use considerable modification and concentration to connect new musical combinations for a public which is becoming more discerning every day. Radio has been instrumental in bringing a new agency in the world of music, and it has taught them to choose the wheat from the chaff, to discard that which is mediocre, and to cherish that which is worth while.

Any music of the radio audience who can work out new ideas in group-song broadcast periods will find a big welcome at whatever radio station they decide to broadcast.

The Sunday evening program at KJL, the first of the new year, brought its usual array of splendid artists to the studio.

Mary Brubaker, Russian baritone, who has been singing in the program for many years, presented an interesting group of songs. The program was a very successful one, and the artists were well received.

“THE NERVOUS WRECK”
HARRISON FORD AND OTHERS
GAIN LAUGHS

By Edwin Schallert

As long as comedies keep on being as good as “The Nervous Wreck,” which is showing at the Broadway Palace Theater, there will be no complaint on the part of the picturegoer. This film version of an Owen Davis stage success is just a lot of comedy, but it is the kind of feature that you only have to look at and laugh at, and don't have to bother remembering. It is enjoyable.

“The Nervous Wreck” originally played here in footlight form several seasons ago, with Edward Everett Horton in the principal role. He made his debut in Los Angeles, as a fact, and had quite a run at that time. Whether this will mean anything for the success of the cinema production is difficult to tell, because the one has not a tremendous lot to do with the other. The title character is fairly true to type, but the plot of the picture itself is liberally supplied with new additions of humor, and ends with an auto chase and a near-killing.

Harrison Ford in the leading role is very amusing. Ford has already demonstrated his cleverness in several other comedies, but in many ways this tops anything that he has done. Some of his pantomime especially is notably funny in broad way. The surest fire is the episode where he tries to signal to the girl that he doesn't want to be short of her identity, and attempts to tell through a series of pictures what will happen if he is captured.

Ford has to swallow vast quantities of pills while playing the role. He is troubled with the delusion that he has only three months to live, and he has to keep out of the “great open spaces” to die.

The heroine is the daughter of a rancher, and, finding the life dull and the prospect of future wedded life with the Sheriff uninviting, decides to marry “the nervous wreck.” While on route to Tucson to the hero's Ford the pair are drafted into service as a cook and waiter at a ranch house that happens to be short of help. Previously they had quite unintentionally held up the owner of the ranch to obtain passing money. Telling the details of the plot partly gives no very adequate idea of “The Nervous Wreck” episode. It really is a very clean and refreshing picture, as regards its humorous entertainment, and there is an excellent account of principle who afford lots of entertainment.

Especially successful among these are Mack Grinn and Chester Conklin, always dependable in the broader sort of comedy.

Phyllis Lee is very cute as the heroine, adding another to her list of excellent portrayals. Charles Gerard is good in a secondary role, while Paul Nicholson is the Sheriff, and Clarence Burton the ranch hand who is chiefly responsible for getting the hero and heroine into kitchen service and making them stay there. Vera Stone is also in the cast.

Scott Sidney directed, and certainly left nothing undone to make “The Nervous Wreck” true to the best stage traditions wherever there are any signs of lagging. On the whole he merits much credit for his handling of this comedy. There are only a few dull spots.

Kine chances out of ten you will find “The Nervous Wreck” both diverting and agreeable.

A Lyman Howe novelty and a Christmas card short subject are on the program.

Distinguished Woman Cast in Play at Wilkes

An important member of the cast of “An American Tragedy,” which will open Wilkes Vine-street Theater, and who by her previous leads a further prestige to the ensemble gathered together by A. G. Wilkes and Harry Mestayer is Ann Warrington, who plays the grande dame mother.

Miss Warrington has appeared on the stage for thirty years, starting her professional career in 1894. In 1907 she received flattering notices in Thomas “John Gabriel” Bjorkman,” appearing with W. J. Hanley. She has a notable list of successes to her credit, having appeared with the leading stars and producers of the American stage, including Henrietta Crossman, Frohman, William Faversham and Helen Roberts.

An unusually large cast for a dramatic production will depict “An American Tragedy,” the action requiring thirty-two players under the direction of Harry Mestayer, who was brought from New York to supervise the destinies of the play.

Mr. Wilkes is planning a high-class production for the premiere of the new theater. The twelve sets required for the action of the play will be built along elaborate lines, it is said.

“CRADLE SNATCHERS”
NOW IN LAST WEEK

“Cradle Snatchers” enters tonight its final week of laugh-provoking at the Playhouse, according to Louis O. Maclean, who announces that the play which is now in its fifteenth week, will depart next Saturday night for San Francisco for a return engagement at the Curran Theater.

The Playhouse is today a scene of considerable activity with Lillian Gish directing rehearsals for “Loose Ankles” which opens the 16th inst. For this production which is said to be popular in New York, Maclean says that Harry Carey, Ken Brown, Jack Carrington, Katherine Claire Ward, Marjorie Bennett, Taylor Graves and a score of others.

DANCE CHANGED

A. G. Wilkes and his associates announce that as a tribute to Carl Laemmle, in whose honor a gigantic birthday dinner will be given Monday, the 17th inst., the opening of the new Wilkes Vine-street Theater with Desires’ “An American Tragedy” as the attraction, will be postponed to the 19th inst., instead of the 17th inst., as was originally scheduled.

STARS WILL APPEAR

Clair Windsor and Harry Carey, who with William Hays are the stars of “A Little Journey,” will be the guests of honor at Loew's State Theater in person tonight.

The two stars will be accompanied to the theater by Robert Z. Leonard, Director of the Metro-Goldwyn Picture of the Year for LAST WEEK AT TALKY, “A Little Journey.”

Clair Windsor will be accompanied by her husband, Bert Lytell.

OFF TO GOOD START

First Offering of 1927 Angers Well for Hillstreet Hills

If the bill presented at the Hillstreet Theater yesterday may be an indication to the type and quality to be presented by the variety house during 1927, a most enjoyable year on the part of vaudeville lovers may be anticipated. Yesterday's performance was an excellent one in every detail and each act proved itself to be of headline quality.

The most prominent offering on the program was the act presented by that clever group of girls, “The Ingenues.”

Each member of this troupe was an excellent soloist as well as an ensemble artist, and some unusual bits in the way of musical entertainment were offered by the complete company, composing a jam orchestra, and by the individual members.

Responsible for numerous laughs in yesterday's entertainment were the “The Ingenues,” who were depicting the trials and tribulations of the “poor hen-pecked husband.” The act was a clever and amusing one and proved to be extremely popular with the audience.

With all the situation “pretensions” of a circus performer with two or three new tricks thrown in for good measure was “Fopito” the clown.

Fopito's act was made up principally of imitations which were realistic as well as side-splittingly funny. His best without doubt was the French doll stunt. With his stuffed body attached to his arm, the clown gave an interpretation of a spoiled child that caused rounds of laughter.

As no vaudeville bill would be complete without its acrobats, yesterday's bill presented Paul Kirkland and company in some remarkable “ladder acrobatic” stunts, and to complete the double team was East and Dumke in a musical act. The two sang a number of selections of the popular songs that has been popular.

In the feature photograph were Lorraine Joy and Olive Brook in “The Ingenues.” The picture dealt with the divorce problem and offered some lively and amusing situations.

Lorraine Joy was seen as “the type of wife that turns the wedding march into a battle hymn,” while Lorraine Joy was seen as the opposite variety of mate.

An Acrop Fable and News Reel completed the program.

MATERNITY ENJOYS SNOW

Otto Matern, who had just returned from a fortnight's trip through the Yosemite, reports the snowing account. Among other winter sports, Otto enjoyed personally participating in the snowing with Christmas plans. This was the young actor's first vacation in the snow since the war days when he was making stage appearances in Sweden.

NAZIMOVA SCORES AS GYPSY MAIDEN
California Collegians, However, Give Excite Star Race for Top Honors

BY MARQUIS BURBY

It's “Old Home Week” at the Orpheum this week. Both Nazimova and the California Collegians, the two headline features of the current bill, might be regarded in a sense as home folks.

So, that old rubber stamp will have to be revised. It's “local folks make good this time.”

Nazimova's one-act play, “A Woman of the Earth,” is purely a stellar vehicle. It is rather flimsy to hold and construction, but it offers the exotic Russian actress a splendid opportunity for emotional display.

The story of the girl of the play has killed the man who betrayed her and is dragged before the village court and sentenced to death. In her supporting cast are Robert Conna, who appears to advantage as Father Petri; Isabel Hill, as the title of the murdered man's sister, and a number of other good players.

Incidentally, as a tribute to Nazimova's popularity here it might be mentioned in passing that the Orpheum had a capacity house at yesterday's matinee—not too common an occurrence for Sunday afternoon performance.

It was something of a toss whether Nazimova or the California Collegians were highest in favor on the bill. The boys have one of the best bands seen here recently, and if they don't draw a salary check of a million or so every week something should really be done about it.

While their jazz numbers are good it is the specialties that won the audience. They do a circus show number that is a scream, winding up with an imitation of a steam locomotive.

The boys suggest fraternity boys and college pranks without resorting to the stock penance of Yale and Princeton, usually so familiar in vaudeville.

All of the boys are said to be graduates of the universities and colleges of California. Included are Lou Wood, Neil Wood, Herb Monte, Coleman Campbell, Elliott Funes, Percy Leander and a host of others.

By the way, there is an interesting coincidence, and her hard-boiled department sergeant is clever. The California Collegians came out and join Sylvia in “All Alone” with unusual results.

There, most of the space has been used, and there are five other acts. By the way, a pleasant voice, but she “mugs” while singing. Rather disconcerting. Leon Domque, her song partner, is a good singer. He is unusual in good, but a piano couldn't stand the old and new song.

Joseph Stanley is mildly amusing, but his act is substantially written and acted. “Dance of the Butterflies” is something of an accomplishment. His tumbling is above par and he works hard for applied comedy. McPherson, a bonny Scotch lad, opened the bill with a top dancing act, and the boys and girls in the crowd with “Dance Divertissements.”

“Bambino” Gets Great Welcome to Los Angeles

An official committee appointed by Mayor Cress and an unofficial committee of self-appointed and not-so-admirers welcomed Babe Ruth, “The King of Swat,” when his train pulled into Los Angeles yesterday. Babe will appear at the Pantages Theater this week, offering a stage demonstration of his prowess.

The Mayor's welcoming committee gave the Bambino a luncheon yesterday. The committee was composed of Harry Williams, president of the Los Angeles Daily News, David L. Shiras, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and other prominent citizens. Babe will appear at the Pantages Theater this week, offering a stage demonstration of his prowess.

With him Ruth brought a carload of baseballs, which he will sign with his well-known scowpaw and pass out to boys and girls in the audience at Pantages. The engagement is for this afternoon.

Veterans Will Have Party to See Comedy

With 500 American, British and Canadian veterans, many of whom took part in the production, to be present, a theater party will be held tonight in Grauman's Egyptian Theater for the presentation of Syd Chaplin as “Old Bill” in “The Better Ole,” the war comedy with the Vitaphone.

This party, arranged by the Central Employment Bureau for Veterans through Ross Lopez, general manager, is being staged by Grauman that the veterans may have an opportunity to witness the picture in which many of them took part, in addition to seeing and hearing Al Jolson, George Jessel, Eileen Jans, and Eugene Howard and Benial Werrenst through the Vitaphone, before the program closes on the 33rd inst.

Directors of the Veterans' Bureau include the following: Chairman, Charles M. Dr. C. W. Becker, John A. Horn, C. A. Fultz and Eugene Bialas.

GEORGE ARLISS PLAY BEGINS SECOND WEEK

George Arliss begins the second week of his limited Los Angeles engagement in the Biltmore Theater tonight in Winthrop Ames' production of John Galsworthy's “Old English.”

A series of capacity houses greeted the English actor last week and the advance sale for the present week is very large. Arliss is repeating here the triumph he has scored in all the cities in which he has appeared as Galsworthy's “great old English”.

He is supported by the players who impressed New York during the 300 performance given there. Included are Miss Lily Marshall, the Australian actress, who is his leading woman,
